

To Whom It May Concern:

Bob Bishop never ceases to amaze me. I've worked with numerous executive search firms over the years - and I have yet to meet anyone as talented as Bob. Once an assignment is given, he never stops until the job is done . . . even if that means meeting at the drop of a hat. He's one of those people who "owns" what he does.

As you will quickly discover, Bob's personality is easily his strongest asset. In an industry that's built on relationships, those interpersonal skills are vital to articulating my agency's requirements. I can safely say that he is constantly looking out for what is best for my organization. In fact, much of the "personality" of my agency has been developed by the people he has placed with us.

I sincerely hope you'll give Bob Bishop strong consideration - not because of my lofty praise - but because I know that he would enhance your organization as he has mine.
